DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This is a four and one half story high building which is two bays wide and built of rusticated stone cut in small blocks.

The first story is a store front. A large sheet glass window on the left is followed by a door primarily of glass on its left, and, next to that, another door of wood. A frieze and moulded cornice appear above the doors and window.

In the second and first stories, windows in the left bay are bay windows. In both of these bay windows, a large center window (apparently one single hung light in the second, double hung one-over-one in the third) is flanked by two narrow double hung, one-over-one windows. In the third story, each of the windows is topped by a one light transom. Rusticated stone lintels and sills appear in the windows of both stories. A foliated frieze appears between second and third story bay windows. Above the third story bay window is a wrought iron balcony which spans the width of the two windows in the fourth story's left bay. These are double hung, one-over-one windows with one piece transoms, placed in stiltes round arches which rest on large abaci and Romanesque-like enchini.

Windows in the right bay of the building are of varied configurations. In the second story is a large stained glass window placed under a flat arch lintel of rusticated stone. In the third story are a pair of small casement windows with sills and flat arch lintels all of rusticated stone. The fourth story window is a continuation of the stilted round arches which caps the other two windows of this story, but here only the transom remains. In the steeply pitched, dormer-like continuation of the facade above the fourth story is one double hung, one-over-one window, with sill and flat arch lintel of rusticated stone.
